THE FOX RIVER DAM STARTED

Active Work Begun on the Fox River Dam; Will Boom Waterway

Fox river between Algonquin and the headwaters of the stream is to be converted into a navigable waterway and a water level will be maintained in Pistakee lake and Fox lake, which will mean a great appreciation in value of the lakes as summer resorts and in the value of the shorelands. Active work on the construction of a dam across the raging Fox at McHenry was commenced Wednesday.

Frank Fisk and George Goff, who have been enjoying the breezes of the lake district, returned to Elgin this morning. They state that the new dam will mean the making of the Fox river valley above the obstruction.

Water in the lakes will be raised and maintained at a level of two and one-half feet above the present level. Pistakee lake, Nippersink lake, Fox lake, Petite lake, Grass lake, Bluff lake, Lake Marie, Lake Catherine and the Channel lakes will be accessible by fair-sized steamers, and a beautiful waterway will result between Algonquin and the headwaters in Wisconsin.

Expense of the new dam is to be borne almost entirely by free will subscriptions of property owners along the shore of the river and lakes. The Fox River Navigation association has been instrumental in interesting property owners in the project. About $10,000 is needed to complete the plans, over one-half of which has already been pledged.

The entire dam is to be constructed of heavy masonry. A large lock is to be constructed to permit the passage of boats up and down the stream, and flood gates will be maintained to carry off excess water. The lock itself will be of solid masonry 60 feet in length and 15 feet wide.

While the lake region is filling with water, as a result of the obstruction of the new dam, Elgin and other intervening towns are bound to suffer for a lack of water. There are dams also at Algonquin and Carpentersville, and Elgin will be virtually shut off until the water rises to the levels of the dams. Flood gates, however, will regulate the supply of water to some extent.

Many prominent people have figured in the project. Congressman Lorimer, who owns a beautiful mansion at Pistakee lake, and Henry L. Herz, collector of internal revenue, also a Pistakee lake resort, are members of the Fox River Navigation association. Donations were received in amounts ranging from $25 to $100.

Elgin property owners at the lakes will be benefited by the improvement. The Elgin Waltonian club owns ten acres of valuable property at Fox lake. Frank Fisk, Frank Lasher, George Goff and Dr. Truman Brophy own valuable lands on the shores of the same lake. Fisher and Mann own land having over a mile of frontage on Pistakee lake, and Thomas McBride, John A. Logan and Alderman W. G. Wilcox own residence property on the same lake.—Elgin Courier.

BARN BLOWN OVER IN STORM.

Four Men Sitting on Self Binder are Imbedded in Debris of Structure.

Wind described as a sharp whirling puff like that of a Kansas cyclone hit the farming territory north of Waukegan Friday and left a train of havoc and devastation in its track that would have done credit to the healthiest wind storm offered by the Sunflower state.

Lifting a hay barn of light construction, on the John Elliott farm on the Beach road, it deposited the building on the ground in splinters an instant after burying four men on a self-binder within the debris of the barn so that they had to be dug out with hatchets.

In Mr. Elliott's orchard nine apple trees were uprooted and blown down while other miscellaneous damage was done.

This morning, in describing the phenomenon to Officer Hicks of the Waukegan force, Mr. Elliott declared that the first Lake county cyclone had lifted his hay barn foundation and all into the air and dropped it to the ground again in ruins.

Four men on a self-binder on the farm had made the barn before the rain fell and they were imbedded in the ruins.

A timber fell across the neck of one horse and saved the life of one of the men, missing his head by a narrow margin and injuring the horse.

Dana Hentges, a north side tatcher, witnessed the fall of the barn and rushed to the aid of the stricken men, chopping at the light roof of the barn which covered them until they were freed one after another, swearing and hot and filled with hay dust, but safe and uninjured. One of the horses succeeded in breaking through the barn roof by main strength while the Waukegan man chopped, and freed himself.

TRAIN KILLS A WORKMAN.

Laborer Crossing Track Looks Around to Find Companion Has Been Killed.

Monday the body of Joe Winkle was brought from Koltze, Ill., a little town on the Wisconsin Central railroad, to Grayslake, where it was interred in the village cemetery. Winkle, who was a German and a railroad laborer, was struck by the afternoon express on the Wisconsin Central and instantly killed last Saturday afternoon. With another man he was engaged in transferring a considerable pile of lumber from one side of the track to the other.

The first man had just crossed the track when the train whizzed through. He continued at his work, not noticing that his companion was missing. After a few moments he noted the absence of the other, and upon looking about, was horrified to see his remains, torn and bleeding, in a nearby ditch. He rushed to the man's side and picked his limp form up only to find that the life had been crushed from his body by the impact of the train. Aid was summoned and later the coroner's jury returned a verdict stating that he had met death from being struck by a train, but did not fix the blame.

Winkle was well known in Grayslake, where his wife is living and which place he called his home. But recently he had been transferred to Koltze, being given a job in the yard instead of foreman of the section as heretofore. He was a member of the M. W. A.

Its Object Attained.

A Cincinnati widow opened a matrimonial agency and married the first man who applied. The concern is now closed.

SAFE ROBBERS IN WAUKEGAN

Break Into the Wember Saloon and work Safe Combination

Safe robbers cracked the safe of Peter Wember, in Tenth street, at 1 o'clock Friday night, while the saloonkeeper slept soundly upstairs, abstracted the cash drawer from the iron box, took a drink, leisurely examined the contents of the cash drawer in the yard back of the house and successfully got away with $230 in cash.

How they knew the combination to the safe, which was worked, how they got it, and how they had time to complete so easy and successful a robbery is a mystery to the North Chicago police, who are working on the case.

It is understood that Chief Yourjevich has been supplied with the name of a suspect, as has Chief Swansbrough, and the police of the two cities will work together to try and land the daring marauder.

The robbery was one of the most clever heard of in many a day and by its very daring and leisure excites the wonder of the police who believe that professionals must have turned the trick.

The saloon that is run by Peter Wember is owned by Charles Wember, of South Genesee street, the agent sleeping in a room upstairs above the place.

He retired at the usual time, after closing and is said to have heard no unusual noises, although the time of the robbery is fixed by the fact that at 1:00 the woman next door, a Lithuanian, heard the back door slam.

The burglars forced the back door, using skeleton or other keys, and carefully pulled the bolt and locked it after entering the saloon.

Then they seem to have taken a drink.

Then they worked the combination and opened the safe. The knowledge of this combination is known only to Peter Wember, although Charles Wember knew it about a year ago and claims to have forgotten it.

The burglars abstracted the cash drawn from the safe, took another drink or two, and left through the side door of the saloon, leaving it open.

Saturday morning P. Wember discovered the robbery and the fact that the $230 that he had placed in the safe was gone. In the back yard he found tracks, a check for $7.50 and an emptied pocketbook that had contained the cash. That is the only clue.

Slum Child's Handicap.

The English vocabulary of a slum child of five, according to a Scottish school inspector, contains only two or three dozen words. That of the average child of the middle classes of the same age is about 1,000 words.

Where Mammon Rules.

"Money" is the basis of more talk in New York city than any other dozen subjects. During one hour in a car, on the street, in two shops and one office 73 conversations, and 64 of them involving money, were counted.

SAILORS DO GOOD SHOOTING

Wonderful Improvement Made in the Navy in the Course of a Few Years.

"The criterion of target practice is the actual number of hits per minute," says Secretary of the Navy Bonaparte. Many ships now average between 75 and 90 per cent. of hits with all their main-battery guns, whereas in former days the percentage was rarely over 40, even though firing slowly at a target more than seven times as large as the present one. Then the target was 100 feet long and 25 feet high; to-day it is 21 feet long and 12 feet high. This increase in hitting ability is due to the assiduous training in the target practices which have been carried out under the new system adopted and also to improvement in ordnance. Going back to 1898, when the navy was using black powder and when sights and other parts of the equipment were poorly developed our firing was both slow and inaccurate. At that time it was considered satisfactory if a 12-inch gun fired one shot in five minutes. But with each subsequent improvement in ordnance the rapidity was somewhat increased, and by carrying out systematic target practice the present striking efficiency has been attained. For example, the heavy turret guns that were but a few years ago allowed five minutes in which to fire a shot, have recently fired three shots and made three hits in one minute.—Harper's Weekly.

Ideal Newspaper Fiction.

Stories of newspaper scoops on matters of current news are many, but it is seldom that a newspaper can claim a beat upon a popular novel. Such a triumph in the discovery of a popular novel was recorded recently by THE CHICAGO RECORD-HERALD when it printed serially "The Wings of the Morning," by Louis Tracy. The judgment of the paper has since been verified by the unprecedented sale the book has had both in the United States and in England. THE RECORD-HERALD's keen judgment in fiction enables its readers to get the best novels often before they reach the book stands, while its policy of giving just the right amount daily and Sunday makes it a pleasure to follow its serials.

A radical departure in Sunday journalism was marked by the advent of the Sunday-Magazine of THE RECORD-HERALD. It is particularly strong in fiction, both serials and short stories, and it has all the other attractive features of the famous illustrated weeklies and monthlies and challenges comparison with them.

Say Sun Is Losing Heat.

Together with French and German scientists no less eminent an authority than Prof. Charles L. Doolittle, director of the Flower Observatory of the University of Pennsylvania, asserts that the sun is gradually losing its heat. For years the diameter of the sun has been contracting at the rate of 66 yards a year.

Total number of votes 802, being equally divided in each precinct.

At the Republican county convention held Thursday afternoon at Libertyville there was no breaking away from instructions except in one of two minor cases.

Both Ames and Griffin were chosen by the unanimous vote of the convention. The nomination of Jones was without effort to break away but in one case, the delegates casting their votes as instructed. Jones received 134, P. L. Persons 63, E. J. Heydecker 45, and C. T. Heydecker 4.

For county clerk A. L. Hendee received 183 votes and J. L. Swayer 113.

T. A. Simpson was nominated superintendent of schools, and here a disposition was shown to break away from instructions. Newport split giving Gaggin 2 votes and Simpson 5, though the delegation was for Simpson, and the 6th ward of Waukegan cast one vote for T. A. Simpson. Simpson received 120 votes and Gaggin 106.

Attorney B. H. Miller of Libertyville was chairman of the convention and A. L. Rogers of Waukegan secretary.

David Jackson was chosen chairman of county central committee and Robert R. Connelly secretary.

John A. Thain and D. A. Williams were chosen Antioch township committeemen.

THE WORLD OVER

LATEST NEWS FROM EVERY LAND.

EVENTS OF THE WEEK

The hottest Indian battle that has taken place in Sonora, Mexico, for months has been fought in a remote mountain section back of Las Guasimas. Seven Mexican soldiers were slain in the two days' battle. The Yaquis left behind a score of dead.

Manie Richards, the 15-year-old daughter of Jacob Richards, who has charge of the locks at the canal in Norristown, Ohio, saved the life of Joseph Williams, a boy of 8 years. The girl jumped into the water and grabbed him by the hair as he was sinking for the third time.

Following a raid of the police on his saloon in Owensboro, Ky., for the purpose of breaking up a supposed game of poker, Scott McCormick died of heart failure. At the coroner's inquest Dr. Watkins testified that death was caused by heart trouble induced by the excitement of the raid.

The Milwaukee Avenue State bank, in Chicago, with more than $4,000,000 of deposits, mostly belonging to working people, has been closed by a State examiner, rumors of a large defalcation are current, a warrant has been issued for the cashier, and President Paul O. Stensland, who also is missing, is anxiously sought.

George J. Mitchell, a traveling man from Newark, N. J., who stops at the Gibson House when in Cincinnati, dropped into a telephone booth in that hotel. He found lying in the booth a pocketbook containing ten $10,000 bills—$100,000 all told—and valuable papers. He returned the property to its owner, who gave him $10,000 worth of good mining stock.

Fire broke out shortly before midnight in the village of West Elkton, Ohio, and for a time it looked as if the entire place was doomed. The village is without fire protection and to prevent the spread of the flames, the Stone shoe store was dynamited and the fire confined to three business places. One fatality was the direct result of the fire. Mrs. Maurice Reed was so shocked by the dynamiting that she died.

A terrific cloudburst struck the borough of Hamburg, Pa. A ten-foot flood swept through the main portion of the town, leaving in its wake ruin and devastation. There are washouts in the streets to the depth of ten feet. Allen J. Romig, who was working in a tin-smith shop, was drowned. The shop was swept away. More than fifty dwellings were damaged. Many persons escaped drowning by rushing to the upper floors of their residences. The total loss will amount to more than $50,000.

Harry Thaw's life in the Tombs is one of luxury, according to Paul McDonald of Pittsburgh, who for a time was confined in an adjoining cell. Virgil Garner says his life was saved by a deck of cards, which stopped a bullet fired at him by Frank Merritt, a negro, while Garner was walking through Eden park, Cincinnati. Garner showed the partially perforated deck when he complained to the police.

KNIFE TO PREVENT CRIME.

Philadelphia Physicians Perform Operations on Seven Children.

Following the theories of the country's foremost physicians and the recent rulings of the juvenile courts the Pennsylvania Society for the Protection of Children from Cruelty, working in conjunction with Director Coplin of the bureau of health and charities, and Chief Abbott of the bureau of health, has instituted the practice of performing operations upon children given into its charge when medical opinion is rendered that such course is likely to prevent a criminal career. This is the first effort of the sort ever made in this country.

The subjects of the experiments were operated on at the infirmary of the society in Philadelphia. C. Seven children were put under the knife by the city's most prominent surgeons, who performed operations calculated to improve the mental and moral condition of the patients.

The physicians who either participated or were interested in the operations were: Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, Dr. A. C. Abbott, Dr. George W. Dougherty, Dr. P. H. Der-cum, Dr. W. W. Hawke, Dr. Alfred Gordon, Dr. Charles K. Mills, Dr. Louis Starr and Dr. Fred Freley.

While only seven children were operated upon, Dr. L. C. Wessel and Dr. A. C. Butcher, who were detailed to the task by Director Coplin, have examined 1,407 cases which were brought into the temporary custody of the society, and other similar operations will take place shortly, provided the consent of the parents can be secured.

Of the total number examined about 50 per cent were found to be suffering from refraction of the eyes and glasses have been ordered for all of these.

While conducting the examinations the physicians made most minute inquiries into the past history of the children and their parents, as well as regarding their present health.

Dr. Alfred Gordon reported that he has discovered a surprisingly large number of cases of feeble minded children, supposed to be the victims of cruelty, who are, in reality, in a condition bordering closely upon imbecility, and calling for constant care of a character which the busy parents are unable to give them.

GAGE'S SON A SUICIDE.

Shoots Himself in a Seattle Hotel While Wife Searches for Him.

Ellis A. Gage, son of former Secretary of the Treasury Lyman J. Gage of Chicago, committed suicide by shooting himself through the heart in a room in the Tourist Hotel, a second-class lodging house on the edge of the red light district of Seattle. He had registered under the name of J. W. Gage, had no baggage and was almost without funds.

His wife and child, who came to join him a few days ago, were at the Grey-stone, a fashionable boarding house. For two days Mrs. Gage had been searching for her husband, employing detectives to aid her, but even his friends had been unable to locate him.

Mr. Gage had been changing from one hotel to another and registering under assumed names for two weeks. His acquaintances say they are not surprised at the suicide, as he had been acting strangely for some time, and had been drinking heavily.

Gage worked for the North American Trading and Transportation Company during 1896-97 on the Yukon river steamer Weare. He had trouble in Alaska, where he was almost killed in a saloon row at Circle City in 1896. His father, his wife's uncle, Capt. P. B. Weare, and J. J. Healy, all in the trading company, interceded for him. Afterward he went to Chicago.

Not long ago Gage left Chicago for the West, and applied for a berth in the Alaska service of the Northwestern Steamship Company in Seattle less than a month ago. After reaching Seattle he deposited $300 in one of the local banks. A statement rendered July 24 showed he had $211 left, but at the time he killed himself had only $7.50. Heavy drinking is given as the cause of the suicide.

Programme for Trades Unionists.

The executive council of the American Federation of Labor has issued its general campaign program to "all organized labor and friends in the United States." It points that Congress has been so "pre-occupied looking after the interests of vast corporations and predatory wealth" and members in their rush for the almighty dollar that "they have had no time and as little inclination" to support the legislation asked in the interest of the laboring man. It says patience ceased to be a virtue, and hence the March 21 bill of grievances presented to the administration. Appeal now is made to the American people "to demonstrate their determination that this republic of ours shall continue to be of, for and by the people, rather than of, for and by the almighty dollar." It is recommended to name only union men or to influence the nomination of labor men by whatever party is found most available. For this work a committee of three has been chosen, namely, Samuel Gompers, James O'Connell and Frank Morrison.

Hotel for Working Girls.

A big hotel exclusively for working girls, to be known as the Trowman Inn, is about ready for business at Abingdon Square, New York City. It aims to do for wage-earning girls what the Mills hotels have done for men. Only self-supporting women between the ages of 15 and 35 will be entertained, and only those earning $15 and less, but a few rooms will be reserved for transients. The price for room and board is to be $4.50 or $5, including breakfast and dinner. The dining room seats 250 persons. Sewing, washing and ironing rooms will be free to guests day and night; also library and reception rooms. W. H. R. Martin, who is back of the plan, says he expects the hotel to pay for itself.

DOUMA LEADERS HIT.

ACTION STARTED AGAINST SIGNERS OF VIBORG MANIFESTO.

Members of Late Popular Legislative Body May Be Sent to Mines or Immured in Prison—Rebellion Among Troops.

The public prosecutor in St. Petersburg has started proceedings against the members of the lower house of parliament who signed the Viborg manifesto.

The charge under which the signers of the manifesto will be brought to trial is a violation of article 129 of the criminal code, which provides for "attempts to overthrow the existing government." This is virtually high treason. The maximum penalty is hard labor in the mines.

No arrests yet have been reported, and the constitutional Democrats do not anticipate anything approaching punishment of their representatives. It is understood that the arrested will be admitted to bail pending trial. The constitutional Democrats are chiefly apprehensive that the possibility of prosecution held over the heads of their leaders will render them ineligible for re-election. In the same manner that Prof. Minkoff and M. Heeser and others were excluded from the last lower house.

Socialist and radical members of the late house may have to cool their heels in cells for a long time and thus be prevented from continuing the full fledged revolutionary agitation upon which they now are embarked. Many of these ex-members now are living under cover in the houses of friends in St. Petersburg or have gone into hiding in the provinces.

A manifesto to the peasants of Russia has been issued in the joint names of all the various labor, socialist, and revolutionary organizations, including the representatives of these organizations in the defunct lower house. This manifesto declares that the hopes reposed in the lower house of parliament have been blasted by the diabolical designs of the crowd of dark dukes, courtiers, and wealthy land proprietors assembled around the Emperor, whose only purpose can be the maintenance of

From Pottava was reported the first serious revolutionary outbreak involving the army. The outbreak followed the arrest of several soldiers discovered in a house known to be a meeting place of the revolutionaries. After the arrests the entire first battalion, accompanied by a large crowd, paraded the streets in defiance of the military authorities. The soldiers proceeded to the military barracks, where they seized several guns and marched with them to the prison the political prisoners are confined in. At this stage all the remainder of the Pottava garrison were called out. The loyal troops fired on the mutineers with machine guns as they were engaged in breaking down the gate of the prison. Several men were killed or wounded.

their power over the people. By dispersing the elected representatives of the people and arresting and imprisoning them the government has declared war on the nation, and a struggle is beginning in which rivers of blood will flow and for which the criminal government is responsible. The people must not spare the government.

Alleged Betrayal of People.

This manifesto further accuses the government of betraying the fatherland by invoking the aid of German and Austrian troops. The people therefore are urged to remove the local authority everywhere, to replace it with men elected by themselves and to confiscate all state funds. The troops also must conform to the orders of those elected by the people. The workmen in the towns, the peasantry, and all toilers must, in conjunction with the troops, seize the liberty and take the land which the government has denied them. The land thus possessed must be handed over to the popularly elected local authorities pending the elaboration of a new land law.

Government's Action Not Explained.

The motives of the government for abandoning its attitude not to prosecute the signers of the Viborg manifesto, as set forth recently by Premier Stolypin in an interview, is not stated, but evidently it was influenced by the need of doing something to counteract the effect of the Viborg address. This has attained an enormous circulation in the provinces, in spite of the greatest efforts on the part of the administration to prevent its publication.

COREYS DRIFT LEGALLY APART.

Wife of Steel Magnate Gets Divorce and Son's Custody.

Mrs. Corey, wife of William E. Corey, president of the United States Steel Corporation, was granted a divorce in Reno, Nev., the other day on the ground of desertion and was given the custody of their 10-year-old son, Allan Corey. No contest was made, although the defendant was represented by counsel. A feature of the trial of the suit was the appearance of Miss Audie Corey, sister of the defendant, who testified that wealthy New Yorkers of a certain type were unfit to have the custody of children and that her brother was not a proper person to have the custody of his son. Such being the testimony the court acknowledged Mrs. Corey's plea.

It is understood Corey has set aside a heavy competence for the use of his wife, who is of a domestic turn, while he has a weakness for social life of the glittering sort.

No scandal crept into the hearing. The name of the show girl, Maybelle Gilman, of whom it was said Corey was enamored, was not mentioned. However, there was a pathetic incident when Mrs. Corey, after reciting the story of her marriage in 1883, broke into tears, and then related the chapter covering her husband's desertion of her last year and of her subsequent efforts to win him back to her home.

Charles A. Justus, aged 30, and three children of his sister, Mrs. Samuel Moudy were burned to death at the family homestead, four miles east of Middleton, Mont.

SHUTTING OUT THE WOMEN.

They Are Being Excluded from Office Work in Chicago.

There is a movement in the Chicago business world to supplant women with men which has manifested itself in various ways lately. The female employees of the Barber Asphalt Company quit under orders July 1. In the Chicago post-office Postmaster Busse has placed women under the ban. County Treasurer Hanberg will give no employment to women in his entire office force. The Chicago United States pension office is an Eveless Eden. The Chicago and Northwestern Railway Company long ago separated all its women employees from their jobs. In explanation one of the officers of the latter said: "It was clear to us that a girl stenographer never could be developed into a department head. Her physical and mental limitations were such as to make her undesirable at those strenuous times which arise often in the affairs of all concerns doing large business. If urgent need on the part of the company suggested that she work a little longer on Saturday than usual she was found with a positively unbreakable matinee date. In short, while she might be good for the one thing she was doing, the qualifications for growth into the class of employees we could promote and eventually pension were not there. It was evident that for every one woman we had in our employ we were forfeiting one chance of finding a man with ability to grow into greatness in the railroad business."

"For instance, a stenographer serving the acting president of a railroad company is in a position to acquire comprehensive knowledge of the railroad business. If the stenographer be a woman—no matter how competent—her work will be more or less perfunctory and the knowledge she is in a position to acquire will not help her to become anything other than what she is, the president's stenographer. A young man in the same position will absorb information and business methods that ought to make of him an invaluable employee in more important lines of railroad work. So the order discriminating against women was issued. It is not absolute by any means, but it indicates the general policy of the road."

Gorky's Opinion of America.

In an article in Appleton's Booklovers' Magazine, Maxim Gorky, the Russian revolutionist and author, speaks out plainly what his impression of this country during his brief visit has been. Upon his arrival in New York, he says, he noticed that on the dark bronze statue of the Goddess of Liberty, green rust had accumulated, but he says he did not then know that the passionate idealism of the young democracy had also become covered with rust, "eating away the soul with the corrosive of commercialism." He did not realize that the disease of money craving had assumed such proportions in America. He says he loves energy, but not when men expend it for their own destruction. Everywhere he sees a senseless treadmill of labor, but nowhere do we feel the beauty of free creation. Nowhere, as in New York, have people seemed to him so unfortunate and so thoroughly enslaved to life, nowhere "so tragically self-satisfied as in this huge phantasmagoria of stone, iron and glass."

Rate Law Becomes Effective.

The first step for the enforcement of the new railroad rate law has been taken by the interstate commerce commission, which has ordered an expert to appraise and fix a value on every railroad in the United States, that the commission may determine whether any rate is reasonable and just. Prof. Henry C. Adams of the university of Michigan and statistician for the interstate commerce commission, has been invited to enter the employ of the commission, to devise a uniform system of bookkeeping for all the railroads, and to appraise their value. The new system, it is hoped, will be in operation by July 1, 1907, and the roads will be required to observe a fiscal year corresponding to that of the government.

Standard Lines Big Contract.

The contract for lubricating the rolling stock of the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburgh, which heretofore has been held by the Standard Oil Company with an annual revenue of $112,000, has been cancelled, owing to disclosures made before the interstate commerce commission. It was shown that the Pennsylvania in ten years saved $1,000,000 by having secretly a more liberal contract than was given any other railroad company. The attorneys for the commission say that the Standard is receiving rebates from the railroads in the form of excessive prices, and that they are paying at least 50 per cent more than would be charged by independent companies.

When the Stars Fall.

Old Judy was a character well known in Lower Hentley, where persons of her race and complexion were rare. She was the last descendant of an old slave family owned, in the days when New England tolerated slavery, by one of the chief magnates of the place. She lived to be a very old woman—over a hundred, according to local belief, although her exact age was not known. It was during the last year of her life that there occurred in August a famous display of shooting stars. The spectacle was a magnificent one, but Judy had no eye for its beauty.

"Massy sakes! Massy sakes!" she muttered, trembling, gazing up with starting eyeballs at the streaked and shining heavens. "T'won't be long dey'll miss a-hittin' round here, sho' it won't. An' s'posin' dey drop on us cold, dey'll hit harder'n' hailstuns; an' s'posin' dey drop on us hot, dey'll scorch wuss'n' grease bilin' over; an' s'posin' dey jess' drop round us an' don't hit folks at all, who's gwine want 'em rollin' roun' underfoot, wid de light knocked out ob 'em, lak pebbles, mindin' people ob de day ob Judgment every time dey studs their toes?"

Explanations and consolation were of no avail. Judy would only shake her head and murmur in tones of awe, "Ah don't understand nuffin' 'bout 'stronomy, but Ah knows it's a sho' 'nuff terrifyin' time w'en de stars begins to fall!"

To Change from Coffee to Postum. "Postum has done a world of good for me," writes an Illinois man.

"I've had indigestion nearly all my life, but never dreamed coffee was the cause of my trouble until last spring I got so bad I was in misery all the time."

"A coffee drinker for thirty years, it irritated my stomach and nerves, yet I was just crazy for it. After drinking it with my meals, I would leave the table, go out and lose my meal and the coffee too. Then I'd be as hungry as ever."

"A friend advised me to quit coffee and use Postum—said it cured him. Since taking his advice I retain my food and get all the good out of it, and don't have those awful hungry spells."

"I changed from coffee to Postum without any trouble whatever, felt better from the first day I drank it. I'm well now and give the credit to Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pages "There's a reason."

RESCUE AMERICAN SAILORS.

Washington Busy on Case of Men
Shanghaied Into British Navy.

In connection with the alleged shanghaiing of O'Donnell of Auburn into the British navy United States District Attorney W. A. Northcott has received advice from the State Department at Washington regarding the investigation that is being made into the case of two men who left Springfield several months ago for the Pacific coast and who, according to the statement made by McLaughlin, were shipped aboard a British sailing vessel, the Celtic Monarch, bound for Australia, under representations that they would be returned to the United States by Sept. 1, 1906. Following is a telegram sent by the Department of Commerce and Labor to Honolulu: "Collector of Customs, Honolulu, Hawaiian Islands: Request British consul to release McLaughlin and O'Donnell, American citizens, if Celtic Monarch touches Honolulu; State Department interested. V. H. Metcalf, Secretary." McLaughlin says that he was deceived in signing to ship on Celtic Monarch, as he was told he was to go on a steamer, whereas the Celtic Monarch is a sailing vessel.

RACE WAR AT ULLIN.

Third Murder by Negroes in Two Months Since Up Bitter Feeling.

As a result of the third murder committed at Ullin by negroes in the last two months the race feeling there is bitter and there is talk of lynching. Serious fighting is feared. Several white men are engaged in a man hunt for two negroes, one of whom, William Daniels, is believed to be the slayer of Homer A. Harris, a white man. The shooting took place at a negro picnic at Ullin. Harris was running a merry-go-round, when three negroes came up. One of them insisted on riding free. Harris refused him and they got into a fight. The negro drew a knife and was knocked down by Harris. At this moment another of the negroes handed Daniels a revolver. Daniels shot five times at Harris, three bullets taking effect. Harris fell to the ground dead. The negro ran through the crowd and escaped, followed by his companions. A white man shot at the three as they left, hitting one of them in the arm. The negro was arrested and the whites are now trying to capture the other two.

ASYLUM REPORTS KEPT SECRET.

State Board of Charities Hears of Investigation Behind Closed Doors.

The State board of public charities heard the reports of its special investigating committees behind closed doors. It was the first quarterly meeting of the board and the contents of the reports are guarded with secrecy. Reports were made as to conditions of the hospitals for the insane at Kankakee, Watertown, South Bartonville, Jacksonville and Anna, and also relative to the Soldiers' Widows Home at Wilmington, the Soldiers and Sailors Home at Quincy and the Asylum for Feeble-Minded Children at Lincoln. In regard to the investigation at Kankakee, Dr. Billings, chairman of the special committee, made a verbal report, and it was voted to make a statement to the public after Dr. Greene, the successor to Dr. Corbus, has taken charge of the institution.

ACCUSED OF KILLING BABIES.

Authorities at Benton Investigate
Charges Against Mrs. Orton.

Eleven children of Mrs. Leary Orton, wife of a farmer living near Thompsonville, are said to have died in a suspicious manner, and the woman is in jail in Benton pending an investigation by the State's Attorney's office. The specific charge against her is the murder of the eleventh child, the body of which was found concealed in an old straw pile, its neck having been broken. The inquest was held last week, and since that time the authorities claim to have found additional evidence against the woman, Mrs. Orton, tearfully protests her innocence, and declares that the authorities are monsters to bring such a charge against a mother.

A man believed to be J. Henry Decker of Havana, killed his wife and himself in a boarding house in Rock Island, at which they had been stopping several days. On the couple's failure to appear, the landlady notified the police, and when the door was broken open the bodies were found in bed, the woman with bullet wounds in her heart and head, while the man, whose hand still grasped the revolver, had shot himself in the right ear. There was no indication of a struggle, even the bed clothing not being disarranged. In the couple's possession were found a small sum of money and a few trinkets, but nothing to indicate their identity except a circular sent out by the Havana lodge of Pythians, addressed to J. Henry Decker, 40 years of age, and the woman about 40 years of age.

Sickness and death have followed so closely the course of the bankruptcy proceedings started two years ago against J. S. and H. C. Starr of Decatur that E. S. Robinson of Springfield, referee in bankruptcy, describes the case as a "hoo-doo." The referee reports that as soon as the case came under his attention he was prostrated by illness, and he was a long time recovering. A short time later Harry Starr, one of the defendants, died. This was followed closely by the tragic death of I. R. Mills, principal attorney for the Starrs, who was killed in the Washburn railway wreck at Litchfield. When the referee came to hear the case, F. O. Roby, one of the attorneys, fainted, and narrowly escaped falling to his death from a fifth-story window. Since then his health has been wrecked, and he spends most of his time in the sanatorium. The latest victim is Judge S. P. Wheeler of Springfield, who was taken critically ill while connected with the case.

BATTLE FOR A CROSSING.

Employees of Louisville and Nashville and Electric Line Fight.

After several hand-to-hand encounters among 800 laborers, employees of the Louisville and Nashville railroad and the Illinois Traction Company, in which several pistol shots were fired, the Louisville and Nashville officials ditched two engines on a disputed crossing at East St. Louis and effectually blocked the plans of the electric road for tearing up the tracks. The crossing has been in dispute for several months, the Louisville and Nashville refusing the electric road permission to cross. The other morning just before daylight the electric road rushed its laborers to the projected crossing and tore up two of the Louisville and Nashville's three tracks. Meanwhile the railroad company hurried its men to the crossing in time to save the third track. They also attempted to relay the other two, but were prevented by the electric road's employees. No one was seriously injured.

APPOINTED CONSUL AT WEIMAR.

W. L. Lowrie of Elgin Is the Fortunate Man.

W. L. Lowrie, who has been appointed United States consul at Weimar, Germany, is a son of Prof. and Mrs. A. H.

Lowrie of Elgin, and has had considerable consular experience. He was secretary to Charles Page Bryan when the latter was minister to Brazil in 1898, and then for two years served as deputy consul general at Rio Janeiro. Mr. Lowrie took the examination for consul at Hobart, Tasmania, but was transferred to Weimar. He is a graduate of Adrian (Mich.) college, and subsequently was a student at the University of Michigan and also at Leipzig, Germany.

FLIGHT AVERTS RACE BATTLE.

Officers Take Away Prisoner Over Whom Clash Is Imminent.

Mounted on fast horses and having in their midst a manacled, frightened negro, for whose life a mob was clamoring, officers from Mounds reached Mound City late the other night, thus preventing a lynching and probably a bloody battle between the blacks and whites. The prisoner was the alleged slayer of Homer A. Harris, a white man killed at Ullin. The prisoner was taken to Mounds, but a mob commenced to gather with the avowed purpose of taking him from jail and hanging him. Two hundred negroes seized whatever arms they could lay their hands on and assembled to prevent the lynching, and it looked as if a bloody battle could not be avoided. The officers, however, averted the clash by removing the prisoner to Mound City.

EXPECT RECORD APPLE CROP.

Orchardists of Marion County Look for Great Yield.

From the present indications an army of men will be needed to harvest the apple crop of Marion County. This county is third in rank among the apple counties of the United States, being surpassed by Benton and Washington counties of Arkansas. There are at present 1,600,000 apple trees in Marion County, most of which are bearing. The prospects at present are that there will be 90 per cent of a full crop, and it is doubted whether shipping and labor facilities are adequate to handle the great quantity of fruit. The apples are of a perfect shape. It will be the greatest yield of fruit in twenty-five years.

BALKS AT WIDOW'S FAMILY.

Prospective Groom, on Seeing Six Children, Calls Wedding Off.

Cupid was balked in his attempt to unite the hands, hearts and fortunes of Rufus Crim of Charleston, and Mrs. Nina Buck of Gypsum, Kan. Mr. Crim and Mrs. Buck became acquainted through the columns of a matrimonial paper. After a brief correspondence Mrs. Buck came to meet her intended husband and have the nuptial knot tied. She was accompanied by her six children of a former marriage. At sight of these the prospective bridegroom threw up his hands. A conference was held and it was mutually agreed to call the wedding off.

THREE "CURED" BY MIRACLE.

Four Thousand Persons Witness
Services at St. Anne's Shrine.

Three alleged "miracles" were performed at St. Anne's shrine near Kankakee Thursday. Miss Barbara Bertonecello of Cardiff, who, it is said, had not been able to walk for seventeen years, was "cured" and walked away from the church without crutches. Miss Mayne Chaney of Muskegon, Mich., who had suffered from poison ivy for nine years, was "made well." Mrs. A. F. Page of Muskegon, Mich., a bedridden invalid for a year, was also cured. More than 4,000 persons attended the services, 1,200 coming from Chicago on the pilgrimage to the shrine of St. Anne.

AGED MAN BEATEN BY THUGS.

Wounds Sustained in Chicago May Prove Fatal to William Goodman.

William Goodman, aged 78, is at the home of his son Charles in Moultrie County, suffering from possibly fatal injuries received at the hands of a gang of thugs in Chicago. He resides in Elwood, Neb., and was en route to the home of his son when he became lost from his granddaughter in Chicago. After a week's search he was found in a hospital, his jaw broken and his body a mass of bruises. He says that he was attacked by a crowd of men and boys and everything of value that he possessed taken from him.

300 PERISH AT SEA.

ITALIAN STEAMSHIP SIRIO FOUND-
DERS OFF CAPE PALOS, SPAIN.

Vessel Strikes Reef and Sinks Immediately—Unable to Gain Deck,
Steering Passengers Are Borne to Their Grave.

Crowded into the steerage, unable to gain the decks above, 300 persons, including women and children, were carried to the bottom with the Italian steamship Sirio, which went on the rocks off Cape Palos, Spain, Saturday evening and sank almost immediately.

Five hundred other men, women and children were rescued after one of the most harrowing experiences in maritime history. Thrown into wild panic, with almost certain death staring them in the face, they leaped, screaming and praying, into the ocean and were picked up by fishermen. Others escaped in the small boats.

The captain of the steamer added to the tragedy of the catastrophe by committing suicide. He blamed the wreck on his own imprudence and declared himself no longer worthy of living.

Bishop Is Among the Lost.

Most of the passengers drowned were Italian and Spanish emigrants bound for South America. The bishop of Sao Pedro, Brazil, was lost, and it is reported that another bishop, identity uncertain at this time, was also drowned. Several of the fishermen who aided in the rescue were killed.

Those rescued from the vessel are now at Cape Palos in pitiable condition, being without food or clothing.

The Sirio, an iron vessel of 4,141 tons and 5,012 horse power, left Genoa for Barcelona, Cadiz, Montevideo and Buenos Ayres. The disaster happened off Horniglas Island, when about 800 persons, including the crew, were on board. The Sirio struck a rocky reef known as Bajos Horniglas, and sank soon after, stern first. Horniglas Island lies about two and one-half miles to the eastward of Cape Palos. The Sirio was owned by the Navigazione Italiana of Genoa. She was built at Glasgow in 1883.

Death Scene Is Horrifying.

The scene as the Sirio went down was so horrifying that some of the spectators were forced to close their eyes. Those who leaped into the water could see the sinking vessel rapidly filling with water until it seemed almost immediately—the stern settled deep into the water and sank below the surface. This forced the bow up until it overhung the ocean. For a moment the bow hung thus, while the death screams of the hundreds of unfortunate prisoners in the steerage escaped from the depths of the doomed ship and could be heard for many rods.

Then with a splash the bow followed the stern below the surface of the water, there was a great swell of the waves and the Sirio, laden with human freight, had passed forever from sight. Involuntary sobs broke from the hundreds of spectators, most of whom had by the closeness of an eyelash escaped from the death which they had just seen befall their less fortunate shipmates.

Before he committed suicide the captain declared the steamer had 645 passengers on board and that her crew numbered 127 men. The Sirio had 570 passengers when leaving Genoa, but additional Spanish passengers were taken on board at Barcelona, where the vessel touched a few hours before the disaster.

END OF FAKE JEWELRY.

Doom of Brass Masquerading as Gold Sound by New Law.

The doom of gold-colored brass jewelry marked eighteen carat, of eight-carat rings marked fourteen carat, of watchcases marked far above their real quality, "gold" cuff buttons with brass links, cheap alloy wedding rings boldly called eighteen carat, "gold" chains which were brass "dipped" in a solution of gold and sold as the solid metal and a hundred and one other devices successfully worked for years upon an innocent public has been sounded.

A new law will protect the public from unscrupulous manufacturers and dealers in jewelry who have for years been foisting on the public spuriously marked gold articles. Now it becomes a misdemeanor to stamp any article of gold or silver as being of a quality more than it will assay. This fraud has been a crying evil in the jewelry trade, and it has been by the hard and earnest work of the best interests of the trade that the attention of Congress has been effectually called to the abuses which have been in vogue. Not waiting for outside reformers to investigate trade conditions, the jewelers themselves called upon Congress to penalize fraudulent works and so to protect honest manufacturers and dealers, as well as the public. The average man buys jewelry with his eyes shut, figuratively speaking, and up to the present time he has had very little protection. The new law makes it prohibitive for any manufacturer to run the risk of deceiving the retail dealer or of abetting him in the deception of his customers.

Notes of Current Events.

The Milwaukee Mechanics' Insurance Company has withdrawn from the California field and will pay all losses.

The fall target practice of the North Atlantic fleet will take place in Massachusetts Bay the last part of September.

Five blocks, including twenty residences and eight business plants, were burned at Suisun, Cal., causing a loss of $100,000.

East Liverpool, Ohio, was chosen as the place of next year's convention of the National Brotherhood of Operative Pottery.

The hen needs more feed and drink when she begins to lay.

Early and thorough training makes gentle, safe and tractable horses.

A man is feeding his cow greenbacks when he feeds a cow with a low test or an inferior flow.

The incubator cannot bring a live chicken out of a dead germ. Neither can the old hen.

The use of hand tools is unnecessary in the preparation of a seed bed if the soil is worked at the proper time.

It is unwise to let a colt follow its dam to the field. A little training and careful management will result all right when the colt remains at the barn.

Dairymen have observed that when there is too much wet weather the grass becomes "washy" and the tests run low. This can be partially overcome by feed.

The best preacher is he who practices what he preaches. The best teacher is he who knows what he teaches. The best farmer is he who practices what he knows.

A certain "would-be agriculturist" heard of the egg plant and he bought a number of them. He says he is going to raise a lot of feed for his hens, and believes that it is the thing for egg production.

For the first three weeks of its life the pig should be fed exclusively through its dam, and the dam ought to be fed with that in view. No one ought to expect a pig to eat and digest corn while at a tender age. The pig needs food that will produce blood, bone and muscle.

When planting trees and shrubs on the lawn for permanent growth, keep in mind the habit of the trees. Make the tops smaller than the roots of trees that are transplanted. Remove all broken roots when the trees are set. Cut broken parts off with a sharp knife.

A good many hours per year can be saved by the use of snaps on harness wherever needed. In putting snaps in the breast straps they should be put in so as not to catch in the neckrope ring when unhitching. Some use a roller snap in the breast strap, and time is saved by it.

The reason why morning's milk should not be poured warm into the night's milk is that the night's milk contains great numbers of germs which are just waiting for a little warmth in order to develop and multiply. The less of these germs the milk contains the longer it will keep.

Little danger exists of making the soil too rich for a vegetable garden, for although a total of ninety-eight loads of manure were applied to a half acre during five years, none of the vegetables at any time suffered in point of productiveness by reason of too rampant a vegetable growth.

Skim milk is an exceedingly valuable feed for growing calves. It must always be fed sweet and must be as warm as the mother's milk, about 98 degrees. Four quarts fed twice a day is sufficient for the first month. Add a teaspoonful of oilmeal to each feed. In addition to the skim milk, let the calves have oats or shorts and hay.

No more wasteful plan exists to winter pigs or hogs of any kind excepting brood sows than to feed simply to make them hold their own. Successful pork production means good, well-bred hogs, good pasture in summer, good sheds, good feeding accommodations in winter, good feed, good water and good care. The hog stands ready to do the rest.

Winter wheat and rye plants have all the tenacity of life that can be found in a single plant. If one does not believe this, let him try to kill out volunteer wheat or rye where he desires to plant corn, and he will be convinced. All known tools disconcert it somewhat, but it soon conforms to the new order of growth and is found in a thrifty condition about the time the husbandman feels that it has been killed. When wheat or rye is found in corn fields it becomes a weed and takes on the hardihood and proves to be very much of a stayer.

Put Brains Into Farming.

Make farming a business. Put brains and money into its management with the expectation that it will return a profit. To run a farm in a half-hearted way, being afraid to make improvements or apply fertilizing material in sufficient quantities, for fear it will not pay, is a sure way of having one's fears realized; while if the effort is made to build up the farm by making it better year by year it is pretty sure to be a success.

Milk Is Good for Fowls.

Sour buttermilk, or even whey, makes excellent feed for fowls, but it is much better to mix the ground grain with it than to place it where they can drink it, in order to avoid waste, as much of it is rendered filthy if placed where the fowls have free access to it. An egg beaten in milk and thickened with ground oats and meal of any consistency will be eagerly eaten by young chicks, but if cooked as bread and crumbled it will be better.

Paste This in Your Hat.

Buy a farm, young man. No matter how small it may be, buy a farm and prepare it so that your land will provide you a living. Twenty years from now, the man that owns his farm will be independent and will have at his command the means of a livelihood. The expansion of manufacturing cannot go on forever, and there will come a day in this country, as there has in others, when the supply will exceed the demand, and the only absolutely sure occupation will be farming. Buy a farm while one may be had.—Exchange.

Killing Dandelions.

Many inquiries have been addressed to this department asking for advice on how to kill dandelions in lawns. The best means, of course, and surest, is to dig them up, root and all. This is tedious, however, and expensive. Try, in case the digging process is not employed, the sulphate of iron solution. Use a good-sized handful to three gallons of water and sprinkle this over an area twenty feet square. It will not injure the grass and will kill the dandelion—at least some of them.

Persimmons Without Pucker.

A note from Washington, D. C., says: Persimmons without a pucker are now being grown by the Department of Agriculture. Owing to the chemical composition of the old-fashioned persimmon, which caused the lips to pucker after eating this fruit, the sales have been anything but gratifying to farmers. In order to remedy this defect the Department of Agriculture imported some Japanese persimmons and crossed them with the American product. A finer specimen has been produced, and in the near future the department will begin the distribution of persimmon trees which will produce fruit guaranteed not to pucker the lips.

Cowpeas for Brood Sows.

A Missouri farmer echoes the opinion of all who have tried cowpeas for hogs when he says:

I will give my experience with cowpeas as a feed for brood sows during the breeding season. Having a field of cowpeas convenient to pasture with hogs, I turned them in, both large and small. There being clover, timothy and blue grass in the same field, I gave nothing else but water. The sows were in good condition when turned in and when the pens were gone they would have weighed probably fifty pounds each more than when turned on the pens. The pigs are now arriving and the result is from three to eight pigs to a litter where I should have had from eight to twelve per litter from aged sows. I have a neighbor who is having like results from same treatment.

A Good Time to Begin.

The market calls for a sheep with a dark face and legs, and a close fleece is an advantage also. There never has been a time when a fair profit could not be obtained from the keeping of sheep. There are in the world to-day ninety million fewer sheep than twelve years ago, and the consumption of mutton and wool is rapidly increasing, hence it is safe to conclude that sheep to the farmer is a safe proposition. Do not start on a large scale; begin low and work up. The Western farmer does not like to do this, and you are no exception. You have never planted the apple because you did not expect to stay to eat the fruit. You must rush on and do big things. Do you not know that in the animal world, as well as in the vegetable world, rapid growth means rapid decay? Plant this live stock business and give it time to strike its roots deep down, and after it is fairly rooted allow the top to grow.—Andrew, Elliott.

Remedy for the Apple Scab.

The Ohio Experiment Station has demonstrated that the apple scab is the chief factor in the destruction of the apple crop and that this fungus can be kept under control by spraying. Four splendid successive crops were produced on the sprayed trees at the station, while the fruit on the unsprayed trees in the same and neighboring orchards was worthless. The director, Prof. Thorne, however, calls attention to the fact that exhaustion of soil fertility, want of water and insect ravages may all co-operate with scab or other fungus growth in shortening the crop, and says: "If our orchards are again to produce the great crops of early days, we must, in so far as possible, restore the soil conditions of those days; we must avoid the waste of water in those sections where rainfall is scanty by preventing the growth under the trees of weeds and grass and by keeping the surface in such condition as to prevent rapid evaporation."

LABOR NEEDED IN MEXICO.

Men Who Can Cultivate Land Are in Great Demand in That Republic.

Mexico is agitated over the subject of immigration. The newspapers deal with the matter quite generally, and many public men have discussed it. It is argued that immigrants from cities are not desirable, as what Mexico needs is men to cultivate the land. It is said the cities in Mexico, like those in other countries, have a superabundance of the element which would be contributed by immigrants from foreign cities.

A year ago a big Japanese company brought 1,000 men from Japanese cities to Boleo for mining purposes. As the Japanese had no experience in mining they were of no use, and had to be shipped home at the expense of the steamship company, which experiment, the Mexican Investor says, cost the company about $100,000. Another Japanese immigration company shipped a large number of Japanese laborers from towns to the isthmus of Tehuantepec to work for the planters there, but they proved a failure and had to be shipped home. For that reason Mexicans say they do not want men from cities.

When a woman suffers from depressing weakness, she then keenly realizes how helpless—how thoroughly worthless she is. Dr. Shoop has brought relief to thousands of such women. He reaches diseases peculiar to women in two direct, specific ways—a local treatment known by druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Night Cure, and a constitutional or internal prescription called Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is applied locally, and at night. It works while you sleep. It reduces inflammation, it stops discharges, it heals, it soothes, it comforts, it cures. Dr. Shoop's Restorative (tablet or liquid form) is a constitutional, nerve tissue tonic. It brings renewed strength, lasting ambition and vigor to weak, lifeless women.

These two remedies, singly, or used together, have an irresistible, positive helpful power. Try them a month and see. Sold by J. H. Swan.

College Students as "Thinkers." It is important for college teachers to promote the pursuit on the part of their students of such subjects as in their inherent character demand thinking and also to promote such a pursuit of these subjects as does promote thinking. Mathematics is a subject which demands thinking. It is thinking; it is nothing else. History may be presented as a matter of acquisition; it also may be presented as a matter of weighing evidence as a study of cause and effect. Economics is a subject which specially offers opportunities for such study and development of thinking. Its phenomena are complex and the causes which prevail in its field are often obscure. These studies and similar ones offer a special advantage in creating and nourishing the power of thinking.—North American Review.

Galveston's Sea Wall. makes life now as safe in that city as on the higher uplands. E. W. Goodloe, who resides on Dutton st., in Waco, Texas, needs no sea wall for safety. He writes: "I have used Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption for the past five years and it keeps me well and safe. Before that time I had a cough which for years had been growing worse. Now it is gone. Cures chronic coughs, la grippe, croup whooping cough and prevents pneumonia. Pleasant to take. Every bottle guaranteed at Swan's drug store. Price 50c and $1.00 Trial bottle free.

Statue Found Husband. A Chicago woman prayed for 15 years before the plaster image of the saint interested in such matters for a husband. Her faith finally failed and she threw the image out of her window. That did the business. When the man with the broken head opened his eyes it was to gaze into those of the unwilling spinster. She nursed him back to life, married life.

LESSON HE EASILY LEARNED

At Least on One Occasion George Convinced Wife That He Could Say "No."

"I dined at the Carlton with the Howard Goulds in London," a globe trotter said. "Afterwards we took our coffee on the raised platform of the foyer, where the orchestra plays and where you get an excellent view of the smart London world. Mrs. Gould entertained us with the story of her last balloon trip. She had stayed up much longer and gone much farther than had been intended.

"The trip," she said, ruefully, "was a little too successful."

"Oh," said I, "can anything be too successful?"

"A temperance sermon was once too successful," Mrs. Gould said. "Then she told us how a woman preached one morning a temperance sermon to her husband, who was suffering from the effects of the night before. 'The great trouble with you, George,' the woman said, 'is that you cannot say "No." Learn to say "No," George, and you will have fewer headaches. Can you let me have a little money this morning?' "No," said George, with apparent ease."

Men Past Sixty in Danger.

More than half of mankind over sixty years of age suffer from kidney and bladder disorders, usually enlargement of prostate gland. This is both painful and dangerous, and Foley's Kidney Cure should be taken at the first sign of danger, as it corrects irregularities and has cured many old men of this disease. Mr. Rodney Burnett, Rock Port Mo., writes: "I suffered with enlarged prostate gland and kidney trouble for years and after taking two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure I feel better than I have for twenty years although I am now 91 years old. Sold by J. H. Swan.

Corollary of a Child.

During the course of a little sermon on morals at a Sunday school the instructor said: "An excellent way, children, when you are in doubt as to whether a thing is right or wrong is to follow the rule never to do anything which you would be ashamed to have the whole world see." Home from the school rushed one small pupil in high glee. "Mamma," he said, as soon as he found his mother: "I'm never to take any more cold baths in chilly weather. Teacher says it's wrong."

Prof. Tyler of Amherst College, said recently: "A man can live comfortably without brains: No man ever existed without a digestive system. The dyspeptic has neither faith hope or charity. Day by day people realize the importance of caring for their digestion; realize the need of the use of a little corrective after over eating. A corrective like Kodol for dyspepsia. It digests what you eat. Sold by J. H. Swan.

Watches Instead of Medals.

According to a Neuchatel correspondent, the watch factories in that town are extraordinarily busy, owing to a huge order for "War Watches" which has been received from the Japanese government. The watches are thin and of good finish, with oxidized metal cases, and are intended for presentation to the mikado's soldiers and sailors, as mementos of their successes in the war with Russia.

Consumption Threatened.

C. Tager 211 Maple Street, Champaign, Ill., writes: I was troubled with a hacking cough for a year and I thought I had consumption. I tried a great many remedies and was under the care of a physician for several months. I used one bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar. It cured me and I have not been troubled since. Sold by J. H. FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE

Cures Kidney and Bladder Diseases in Every Form—Many People Have Kidney Trouble and Do Not Know It.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

It is the function of the kidneys to filter and purify the blood which is constantly passing through them.

When the kidneys are out of order the other organs are affected immediately and you may have symptoms of heart trouble, stomach and liver trouble, and other ailments, which are all owing to the kidneys being weak and out of order.

If you are sick Foley's Kidney Cure will strengthen and build up the worn out tissues of the kidneys so they will act properly and the symptoms of weakness, heart, stomach and liver trouble will disappear and you will be restored to perfect health.

How to Tell if You Have Kidney Trouble.

You can easily determine if your kidneys are out of order by setting aside for 24 hours a bottle of the urine passed upon arising. If upon examination it is cloudy or milky or has a brick-dust sediment or small particles float about in it, your kidneys are diseased and Foley's Kidney Cure should be taken at once. Foley's Kidney Cure is pleasant to take and acts directly upon the parts affected and you begin to feel better at once.

It corrects slight disorders in a few days and it has cured many obstinate cases after other treatment had failed.

Doctors Said He Would Not Live.

Peter Frey, of Woodruff, Pa., writes: "After doctoring for two years with the best physicians in Waynesburg, and still getting worse, the doctors advised me if I had any business to attend to I had better attend to it at once, as I could not possibly live another month, as there was no cure for me. Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended to me by a friend, and I immediately sent my son to the store for it and after taking three bottles I began to get better and continued to improve until I was entirely well."

St. Alban and His Teacher.

By some strange irony St. Alban, the martyred but possibly mythical Roman soldier, whose festival falls on June 22, has quite overshadowed his probably historic instructor, St. Amphibalus, whose anniversary comes on the following day. About Amphibalus we know that he was a native of Caerleon, which the Golden Legend expresses by dubbing him "a prince's son of Wales in grete arraye." He was buried at Redbourne, but "translated" to St. Alban's abbey, where his cup was preserved, "which they of the common sort call St. Affabells Bolle." In former times children were frequently christened with his name, and Affabell Partridge was goldsmith to Queen Elizabeth.

On Friday last Abe Crowley presented the editor with two fine large black bass, which he caught in Cross lake. Mr. Crowley is an expert fisherman and always succeeds in landing a number of beauties. Uncle Abe is of a generous disposition and many are indebted to him for the fine strings that are in evidence after a fishing trip.

The people of Solon Mills feel jubilant over the fact that a paper mill has been secured for that place. The Moody property, including mill race and water right, has been bought by Chicago parties who have agreed to establish a paper mill at that place. The property has been bought under contract, the people of Solon agreeing to give the parties a certain sum of money as soon as the plant is established and paper is shipped from the mill.

On Friday morning of last week at about nine o'clock the people of our village were somewhat alarmed to hear the cry of, fire, followed by the loud clanging of the fire bell. Everyone rushed toward the west end of Lake street from whence the cry came to find the barn located on the Frank Williams property in flames. The barn was a small building and was soon reduced to a heap of ashes. Fortunately the wind was in the southeast or the house would also have burned. The fire was caused by the children playing with matches. The place is at present occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shepard.

On Monday afternoon of this week at the home of Dr. and Mrs. E. H. Ames, occurred the death of Mrs. Ames's sister, Mrs. Emmett. Mr. and Mrs. Emmett came from their home at Columbus, Ohio, for a visit with her sister, arriving here on Saturday, July 23. She had not been well since her arrival having contracted a cold during their journey, but her condition was not considered serious till the latter part of the week when she began to grow rapidly worse, and on Monday she passed away having been here a little more than a week. This was indeed a sad ending to the visit that had been looked forward to with much pleasure by both sisters. The funeral was held at the Ames home Wednesday afternoon, Rev. McNamara officiating. The remains were laid at rest in the Antioch Hillside Cemetery.

There is nothing so pleasant as that bright cheerful, at-peace-with-the-world feeling when you sit down to your breakfast. There is nothing so conducive to good work and good results. The healthy man with a healthy mind and body is a better fellow a better workman, a better citizen, than the man or woman who is handicapped by some disability, however slight. A slight disorder of the stomach will derange your body, your thoughts and your disposition. Get away from the morbidness and the blues. Keep your stomach in tune and both your brain and body will respond. Little indiscretions of over-eating can be easily corrected and you will be surprised to see how much better man you are. Try a little Khol for Dyspepsia after your meals. Sold by J. H. Swan.

Advocate Mice in Cool Mines. Some authorities on mining say that white mice ought to be kept in all coal mines, so that the little animals can be used to test the condition of the air. It is known that they are much more sensitive than men to atmospheric impurities of the kind which cause deadly accidents in mines, and it is argued that whenever or wherever a white mouse becomes incapable of motion because of air poison it should be taken as proof that miners must seek safety.

The End of the World. Of troubles that robbed E. H. Wolfe, of Bear Grove, Ia., of all usefulness, came when he began taking Electric Bitters. He writes: "Two years ago kidney trouble caused me great suffering, which I never would have survived had I not taken Electric Bitters. They also cured me of general debility. Sure cure for all stomach, liver and kidney complaints, blood diseases, headache, dizziness and weakness or bodily decline. Price 50c. guaranteed by J. H. Swan."

NO NEED TO BE SEASICK.

German Invention, It Is Stated, Will Do Away with This Distressing Malady.

Getting jarred is, in plain language, the latest cure for seasickness. The method is described in the Technical World, which asserts that success has attended the trials of the new device.

The apparatus, which is of German invention, is very simple. It is merely a comfortable chair, the seat of which is set rapidly vibrating up and down by the force of an electromotor connected to the electric lighting wires of the steamer.

Those wishing to prevent an attack of seasickness sit down on the vibrating chair. They have about the same sensation as in riding in an automobile. The vibratory motion makes the rolling and pitching of the ship less felt, the slow downward motion of the vessel being counteracted by the numerous short vibratory shocks occurring in an upward direction.

There is nothing so pleasant as that bright cheerful, at-peace-with-the-world feeling when you sit down to your breakfast. There is nothing so conducive to good work and good results. The healthy man with a healthy mind and body is a better fellow a better workman, a better citizen, than the man or woman who is handicapped by some disability, however slight. Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased. Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

What Has Killed the Sport? "War," said Uncle Henry Butterworth, "used to be the sport of kings, but somehow or other it has been a long time since we've heard of any king so all-fired sporty that he wanted to indulge in any back talk with a sassy Maxim rapid-fire repeating man-eater loaded with dum-dums."—Kansas City Times.

I had diabetes in its worst form. writes Marion Lee of Dunreath, Ind., I tried eight physicians without relief. Only three bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure made me a well man. Sold by J. H. Swan.

To Clean Eye-Glasses. Let eye-glasses lie in alcohol for a few moments, then polish with camolins. If the glasses are set into gold frames, a fine camel-hair brush will lift the dust from the edges and make them look like new.

Don't drag along with a dull, bilious, heavy feeling. You need a pill. Use DeWitt's Little Early Risers, the famous little pills. Do not sicken or gripe, but results are sure. Sold by J. H. Swan.

Wanted All stomach sufferers to take "Gastrozone," a stomach cure and not a cure as most medicines claim. Gastrozone does not digest your food but acts directly upon the lining of the stomach making it aseptic and bringing it back to its normal condition so that it will digest its own food. Endorsed by leading physicians for the cure of all stomach disorders. Beware of concoctions of oil of Vitriol Sulphurous acid and water bearing similar names. Weak hearts are due to indigestion Gastrozone works quickly and efficiently. Recommended by and sold only by J. H. Swan.

Americanization of England. Twenty years ago the English hated everything that was American. We now think altogether differently. The American woman is the pattern upon which our women are being remodeled; the American man has wholly altered our character and that of our business. British institutions are being reconstructed in accordance with those of the United States.—Truth, London.

Origin of Fireworks. Fireworks originated in the thirteenth century, along with the evolution of powder and cannon. They were first employed by the Florentines, and later the use of fireworks became popular in Rome at the creation of the popes. The first fireworks which resemble those which we see nowadays were manufactured by Torre, an Italian artist, and displayed in Paris in 1704.

One Man's Evil

By EFFIE ROWLAND

CHAPTER XXII.—(Continued.)

The maid was back again almost directly. She told Lady Betty that Antonia was not in the drawing room; her eyes were full of pity for her mistress.

"I have told them to telephone for the doctor, my lady," she said. "Can I help you?"

Lady Betty had sunk on her knees by the bedside, and was chafing one of the cold hands. Her manner was full of agitation; she looked almost wildly at the maid.

"I cannot make him answer me," she said. "Oh! Emma, I am frightened."

The maid's eyes filled with tears. If ever she had nurtured a harsh feeling for her pretty mistress, that feeling died now as she saw Lady Betty's blonde head bowed in what seemed to be a very agony of grief.

It was not long before others joined them, the doctor and other servants, and then Lady Betty was lifted from her knees and led gently away into her own room.

When she spoke it was in faint, weak accents, and the doctor was sympathetically impressed by what he took to be signs of physical as well as mental suffering.

She repeated to him exactly what she had said to Antonia, and Dr. Anderson was silent for a moment or two.

"I think I shall prescribe entire rest for you, Lady Elizabeth," he said. "Rest and fresh air," he added, and he stood and glanced about him. "There is a strange atmosphere in this room; it almost seems to me as if some chloroform had been used."

For answer Lady Betty held forward toward him a small bottle with "chloroform" printed on the label.

"I have been nearly crazy with toothache," she said. "I suppose it is a nervous attack, but the only thing that gave me ease was this. I don't think," she added, faintly, "I should have cared how much I had used to get rid of the pain. I feel lost, Dr. Anderson," she said, half wildly; "I cannot realize that he—has gone. He was so good, so tender, such a noble man. What can have caused his death?"

"I am afraid I cannot answer that question just yet, Lady Elizabeth," Dr. Anderson said, gravely. "I shall have to go into this matter."

The heart of the woman stood still. "Do you mean that there will have to be a post mortem examination, an—an inquest?"

"You will leave things to my hands, Lady Elizabeth," he said, kindly. "I presume that Lord Marchmont will come here, and we will settle every detail together."

The doctor closed the door, and Lady Betty was alone. She stood and looked about her in an agonized way. With a choking cry the woman covered her face with her hands, that ashen face from which, for the moment, all prettiness had fled.

It was no longer Antonia she had to fear. She must think swiftly; she must work her brain subtly to devise some means that would prevent the working of justice.

even return to Gerald Tenby's rooms; he would go as he was, go he cared not where, so long as he put distance between himself and all for which he had worked.

So he turned with a mocking laugh on his lips, but an aching wound in his heart, and before night time came he was well away from London.

Antonia met Gerald Tenby on the doorstep of Lady Charlotte Singleton's house. The girl would have passed in without even speaking to him, but he stopped her.

"Forgive me," he said; "I heard your uncle was very ill. I came to offer my sympathy."

"My uncle is dead," said Antonia. She did not look at him; he fancied he saw the old aversion in her face.

"He was a good man. I am sorry," she said. "The girl tried to conquer her feelings, but words would not come; indeed, in this moment the old loathing for this man was uppermost. Not even for the sake of what was to be gained could she continue the part she had set herself to play."

She bent her head and passed into the house, and Gerald Tenby turned away and knew that she wished him to be gone.

Long after Gerald Tenby had risen and passed away, Sylvia and Ben Coop sat on talking.

The woman hardly recognized herself in this hour. She felt as if she had been touched by some magician's wand. All the cultivated hardness and worldliness that had grown into her nature these many years dropped from her and left her what she once had been. It was like a dream to sit listening to Ben's slow, north-country voice.

"I must go now," she said; "but I shall not say good-by to you, Ben; you will come to me, won't you?"

"To the end of the world," Ben said, simply; "and when I have found the lad I'll be more free to serve you, Liz."

"I pray that you may find the lad," she said. "I hope I may have been the means, perhaps, of putting you on the right path. I should like to feel that I had had some share in giving joy to that beautiful girl who loves him. We met and spoke, Ben, the other day; I felt better after that."

Then Sylvia had swept away and had gone out to her carriage, heedless of the curious eyes that watched her, and Ben had left the picture gallery, and had gone out into the streets also, feeling his heart a maze of sorrow and joy, feeling also a thrill of excitement.

He went slowly back to his hotel, where his sad face and bowed head spoke eloquently of trouble and suspense.

Sylvia mingled in with his thought. It seemed so natural, and yet so strange, that Liz still lived, and that she had need of him.

Stephens, the discharged valet, had arranged to come to him before evening; so Ben remained in the hotel, waiting for this man. The hours crept by, and Stephens did not come, but finally a note was brought. It was written in pencil, and signed by Stephens.

Stanton is leaving London for the continent; I am going to follow him. Will communicate with you at the earliest opportunity. I think this is my best plan. There is work for you to do. I inclose you herewith the address of a house to which I understand Stanton has been in the habit of going. I don't know whether there will be anything in this, but everything is worth trying, especially when we have to deal with such a scoundrel. I shall give you an account of the money you advanced to me when we meet again."

The advent of this letter acted like magic on Ben. He threaded his way up to Tottenham Court Road slowly.

The house to which he was going lay very far out, and more than one person advised him to reach it by train.

Feeling the wisdom of keeping his strength as much as possible, Ben resolved to take this advice, and it was while he was threading his way to the station that he suddenly saw a man's face looking out at him from a hansom upon which was piled some luggage. The man was Gerald Tenby. Though his eyes rested upon Ben for an instant, there was nothing to tell the rich man that this humble looking individual was one who was working for justice. Gerald Tenby was going to Mill Cross Court.

When the door had closed upon Antonia that afternoon he had stood a moment hesitatingly. The girl's manner had chilled him, and her news had startled him.

He determined all at once that he would leave London. Stanton had come. Their secret was safe, he preferred not to risk a meeting with Lady Betty.

It was a clear summer night when he alighted from the train at Mill Cross, and he gave a sigh of relief. At least for a few hours, he said to himself, he would be free from questioning eyes and from those imaginations of suspicion that made life in London so impossible.

But as he walked down the platform he found his brow contracted with a frown, and he felt his heart leap with a new fear, for a woman's figure was standing close by, and as he passed her he felt that she turned and looked at him steadily.

Certainly Sylvia Castella was the very last woman in the world whom he would have expected to see in such a place, and instantly all his suspicions and fears were loosed again.

What had brought her to Mill Cross? He knew now that she was associated not only with Stanton, but with this man whose friendship to Hubert Tenby signified so much.

Why should such a woman as this turn her back upon her life in town and travel to Mill Cross, unless she was there for the purpose of following him, and of helping forward the work of retribution?

CHAPTER XXIV.

It had been a sudden whim that had carried Sylvia Castella back to that little musty village where she had lived the happiest part of her life.

"I will go to Mill Cross again, and it will be almost as if Ben were with me all the time," and it was this impulse that had put her into the north express and had landed her at the little wayside station at which Gerald Tenby had alighted also.

Gerald would have followed her—he hardly knew why, save that fear was pressing in upon him from all sides—only it was impossible for him to expose himself to too much comment. He had to go on to the Court, to that big old house that once had seemed to him the only place in the world that was desirable, but which to-night had no beauty in his eyes.

The butler looked at him with well-concealed surprise. He wondered what could be the matter with Sir Gerald. The young man looked almost old; certainly this gray-faced, nervous man was very much apart from the smart, clever, wealthy Gerald that had been wont to pay visits to Mill Cross while Sir Maurice was alive; but good servants have their share of tact—the man did not let his master realize that he noticed anything was amiss.

He spoke to him about matters that had occurred since Sir Gerald had been in London, and he handed him some letters, and with these letters the packet of papers which Stanton's faithful old friend, Sarah, had journeyed from London to deliver.

"This packet was left with me to be delivered to you personally when you should arrive, sir," he said; "it was brought by an old woman."

"By an old woman?" repeated Gerald, hurriedly; then his memory returned. He almost dropped the packet; it had a hideous significance to him, not that anything contained in it, but that its very presence conjured up all that he desired to hide forever.

The servant closed the door and he was left alone, left to stare down at that small square packet, which had been the excuse for getting Sarah out of the road while work was being done in the old tumble-down house which was her care, her joy and her sorrow.

London was provided with a great sensation the morning following Gerald Tenby's departure to the North. Scarcely had the news of Edward Marchmont's death been made public than the world was informed of a new disaster that had befallen the lot of the widow.

A most extraordinary thing occurred, something terrible and bizarre, something that shocked people even while it struck them as being unusual and alarming.

This was no less than a great fire that had consumed the greater portion of the house where Lady Betty had lived and fluttered away the many years of her butterfly existence; a fire so large in its proportions that, though help was forthcoming in a very short time, the fury of the flames was so great that it was almost impossible for the firemen to approach.

And life was lost also. Lady Betty herself was rescued in a half-fainting condition, and a greater portion of the household fortunately escaped; but one or two of the inmates, caged at the top of the house, perished in the flames that had sprung to life, no one knew how, and with those two living creatures the body of Edward Marchmont had been consumed also.

The news reached Antonia by means of one of the maids in Lady Charlotte's house.

She fell on her knees, as soon as she was alone, and tried to pray, but the horror that had come over her as she remembered Betty Marchmont paralyzed her brain; not even a prayer could come coherently; in fact, the girl was verging on an illness. She had made enormous demands upon her courage and her physical strength, and this prostration was only the natural outcome of such exertions. As she sat there a message came to her from Lady Charlotte, asking if she would go to her at once.

Antonia found the delicate woman in a state of great agitation. Lady Charlotte was sitting, propped up by her cushions, gazing at a letter that she held in her hand. Antonia went across the room to her and sat down beside her.

"Oh, Antonia," she said, "what can I say to you? What wrong I have done! Child, your faith should have taught me a lesson; your love tried to lead me to this, and I would not be led."

ELECTRIC TRUNK LINES.

Possible Effect They May Have on Future Freight Rates.

Within the last few days an announcement has been made of a proposed air line electric route between New York and Chicago, reduced to a distance of 742 miles, the run to be made in ten hours. The Pennsylvania railroad line between Chicago and New York is 912 miles. The electric air line route would thus cut off 170 miles, or 18.6 per cent of the steam road distance.

Assuming that an electric trunk line between Chicago and New York is financially and otherwise practicable, and this is open to question, the strategic value of such a project is such as possibly to have a far-reaching effect on the whole trunk line situation. If electric lines could eventually parallel the trunk lines to the Atlantic and Gulf seaports their influence on the railroad situation might not stop with passenger traffic. They would begin to tell sooner or later on freight conditions. They would not simply figure as feeders of the railroad, as they are now generally doing, but possibly reduce the ton-mile rate of freight to a new low basis of cost. The average revenue a ton mile for the year ending June 30, 1903, was .7025, and for 1904, .7800. This is the lowest average cost of any railroad system in the world, but not to be accepted as finality. The probable effect of electric line construction on railway rates would not only be found to influence through freights, but might be still more marked in its effect upon local freight rates. This is doubtless a far look ahead, but the development of electrical power has been so rapid and marvelous that its possible future growth becomes a subject of fascinating interest.—Wall Street Journal.

FARMS AND FARMERS

The Disk Cultivator.

Disks as farm tools are growing more popular all the time. They are used at all stages of farm work, from plowing to final cultivation. A man of long experience says of them:

"The main points in favor of the disk are that it will work closer to young corn without covering it, will work ground without injury that is too wet to be plowed with a shovel plow, will not throw up clods, but leaves the ground always in a fine tilth, can be set to run varying depths, shallow next to the corn and deeper in the middle of the row, which is the proper way when making the last two cultivations. However, the disk will not plow deep in very hard ground or turn the soil in such a way as to kill large weeds, yet if the weeds are taken in hand before they become too large the disk is satisfactory in this as well."

When corn is checked it is not practicable to plow across the field with the disk. If the disk is run across the rows, it will be very inconvenient, as the gangs are more nearly rigid and cannot be so easily adapted to the inequality of the ground.

For harrowing away the young corn, cutting the dirt away from it, and for giving the last cultivation, laying by, I consider the disk vastly superior to the shovel, but where land has been severely packed, as by hard rains, nothing, in my opinion, will take the place of a four-shovel cultivator of the twisted pattern, and they should not be less than five inches wide.

Fattening Coop for Poultry.

In the fattening of poultry for market it is always a good plan to confine the birds to quite small quarters in order that the food given them may accomplish the best possible result. The fattening coop should be where it is light and dry and the birds must be kept comfortable at all times. More than all, the coop or coops must be kept clean, else the fowls are likely to become sick and will not in such condition take on flesh. Where there are a number of fowls to fatten coops are arranged on a wide shelf which forms the bottom, then when it is to be cleaned simply lift it up and set in another place, leaving the shelf free to clean thoroughly. Any box of light material will do for the fattening coop with wire netting to within six inches of the bottom. Across this space a bar may be placed with just enough space between it and the wire netting so that the hen can get her head out to feed. A narrow trough should be kept in front of the coop and be filled with a variety of grain in mixture so that the fowl may help itself when it desires. These coops are very inexpensive, easy to make and will prove very economical. The illustration shows the idea very plainly.—Indianapolis News.

Value of a Better Cow.

The value of a cow considered as an investment was lately figured out by H. P. Guerier, the Illinois expert. Starting with a poor cow, one that produced 200 pounds of butter a year, he reckons the food cost at $30 and the labor at $12.50, while the butter is worth only $35, or less than the market value of the food consumed. The fancy butter cow produces 400 pounds of butter per year, and on the same basis of reckoning nets her owner interest on $400, besides paying for the food and labor. The price of butter in both cases is reckoned at 20 cents. The fancy cow consumed somewhat more food than the other, but the difference was more than offset by the increased amount of skim milk. According to Mr. Guerier, the fancy cow is better worth $400 than the ordinary cow taken as a gift.

Method for Testing Eggs.

A simple method for testing eggs, which comes from Germany, is based upon the fact that the air chamber in the flat end of an egg increases with age. If the egg is placed in a solution of common salt it will show an increasing inclination to float with the long axis vertical. By watching this tendency the age of the egg can be determined almost to a day. A fresh egg lies in a horizontal position at the bottom of the vessel; an egg from three to five days old shows an elevation at the flat end, so that its long axis forms an angle of 20 degrees, and an egg a month old floats vertically upon the pointed end.

Tomatoes and Nitrate.

One hundred pounds to the acre of nitrate of soda applied to the tomato crop when the fruit is beginning to set will largely increase the yield and hasten the time of ripening. Spread the nitrate broadcast, or between the rows just before a shower, and then cultivate it into the soil. One quarter of an ounce to a plant is about right in small gardens. Experiments at the New Jersey station have shown that nitrate applied about the middle of June had a much greater effect on the crop than the same amount applied earlier in the season. A dressing of 100 pounds per acre increased the crop one-third above that of a plot not so treated. Nitrate of soda is a very quick working fertilizer. It produces rank, dark green foliage, which obstinately resists the attacks of insects and of mildew. We have found nitrate excellent also to produce early asparagus, but care must be taken not to apply too much.

For Ringing Hogs.

Make a box 6 feet long, 4½ feet high, 18 inches wide and put a floor in it. Put a door in one end and a stanchion in the other end with loose bolts, so you can adjust it easily to suit the size of the hog. The stanchion is the same as for cows, except the one you move should not have a bolt through it, but a notch cut in lower end to catch over bolt. When you are through ringing, loosen stanchion. The hog will always step back, then lift out the loose stanchion so he can go through. Simply catch the hog in stanchion to hold him and then use the tongs. Have a narrow shoot at rear end of box so you can drive hogs into it easily.—Farm and Home.

Sheep on the Farm.

A knowledge of the habits of feeding is of value in selecting breeds of sheep for the farm. Merinos feed in a bunch, while the large, openwool breeds scatter like cattle. For herding with cattle, the larger breeds are preferable, as they do not spoil the grass, unless in large numbers. For fence pastures, used for sheep alone, the habits of the merino favor close feeding. For weedy ground sheep should be kept on scant pasture. If there is plenty of sweet grass they will not touch the weeds. If grass is scarce the weeds are cropped low.

It is a good policy to change the feed of a sheep frequently. Especially is this necessary for fattening sheep; they become tired of one variety of food. The hay may be varied with corn-fodder, or even straw occasionally. The grain should by all means be varied with roots, oil cake, bran, etc. This method of feeding stimulates their appetite and keeps sheep from "getting old their feed." Sheep often go a long time without drinking, especially if in good pasture, and when the dew is so heavy that they can fill up with wet grass in the morning. But when they do want to drink, water is as necessary to their health and comfort as to that of other animals.

Waste Land in Corn Fields.

Most corn growers plant more acres to corn than they harvest. Investigation has shown that there are twenty-five acres and often a much larger area of idle land in every corn field of 100 acres. This idle land results from the failure of seed here and there throughout the field to grow. It is cultivated just the same as if it were properly engaged. The farmer, therefore, wastes labor and loses the use of the land. Where a large acreage of corn is grown the aggregate loss is an important item.

When to Dock Lambs.

The docking of lambs should take place when they are 2 or 3 days old. Of course, it may be done later, but the injury resulting is less at the age named than later. When docking is deferred until the lambs are several weeks old bleeding is usually profuse. In some instances it will cause the death of the lambs unless it is stayed. The flow of blood may be checked by tying a cord tightly around the adhering portion of the tail, and better still by searing the wound with a hot iron.

Farm Notes.

A man makes a mistake when he depends on a scrub bull to head his herd of cows.

If you want to make the strawstack benefit the cow, put some of it under her for bedding.

Federal and Utah state sheep inspection officials have decided to make dipping compulsory in the state in order to eradicate the scab.

A man is quite liable to make a mistake when he attempts to grow three crops of corn in rotation. This is taking a step backward.

There is more clean corn ground this year than usual. The cultivator cannot do its best work when rains are plentiful and abundant.

With the hay loader and the horse hay fork hay ought to go into the barn rapidly. When hay is cured it cannot be put away too fast.

It is claimed that although the conditions of food and climate in Japan offers no serious obstacles to sheep farming, there were in 1901 only 2,545 sheep in that country.

UP-TO-DATE DESIGNS FOR THE HOME DRESSMAKER

Jaunty Eton Jacket.

The reign of the Eton still continues, and it is, if possible, even more popular with young girls than with their elders. A large number of the mohair, volles, cashmere and other light-weight suits for summer are made up in this mode. Our model is made of the white serge and is very smart and graceful. With its wide, fitted skirt it will serve equally well as part of a suit or as a separate wrap. The sleeves are full and short, coming to the elbows only, and the jacket, despite its seeming looseness, fits perfectly. The neck is finished with a narrow collar, and the bottom of the little coat terminates in gracefully shaped points. This is a charming style for blouses, ducks or plique shirts, as well as for the light-weight woollens. The pattern, No. 1494, is cut in sizes for girls of 14 and 10 years of age.

The above pattern will be mailed to your address on receipt of 10 cents. Send all orders to the Pattern Department of this paper. Be sure to give both the number and size of pattern wanted, and write very plainly. For convenience, write your order on the following coupon:

Girl's Loose Coat.

The Frenchly little mode from which this design is taken is of bright scarlet broadcloth, very chic and jaunty on its small wearer. These bright colored coats are worn somewhat over here also, but not so generally as those of the more subdued colors. They are pretty for occasional use, but for general wear the tans, blues, greens and browns are better. This is one of the smartest loose coats of the season, but very simply made. The body is cut in three pieces, and it may be lined or not as preferred. Side pockets are set on, which are a decided convenience. The pattern, No. 1492, is cut in sizes from 6 to 12 years, and the medium size will require 1½ yards of material 52 inches wide.

BABY COVERED WITH SORES.

Would Scratch and Tear the Flesh Unless Hands Were Tied—"Would Have Died but for Ointment."
"My little son, when about a year and a half old, began to have sores come out on his face. I had a physician treat him, but the sores grew worse. Then they began to come on his arms, then on other parts of his body, and then one came on his chest, worse than the others. Then I called another physician. Still he grew worse. At the end of about a year and a half of suffering he grew so bad I had to tie his hands in cloth at night to keep him from scratching the sores and tearing the flesh. He got to be a mere skeleton, and was hardly able to walk. My Aunt advised me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I sent to the drug store and got a cake of Soap and a box of the Ointment, and at the end of about two months the sores were all well. He has never had any more of any kind since. He is now strong and healthy, and I can sincerely say that only for your most wonderful remedies my precious child would have died from those terrible sores. Mrs. Egbert Sheldon, R. F. D. The Floor of the Pacific.

The red clay which covers the deep floors of the Pacific and the Indian oceans is made up of refuse and residue—that which can withstand the strong chemical action of the gases. In it may be found decomposed volcanic rock, pumice, zeolite crystals, manganese oxides, meteoric iron, teeth of sharks and ear bones of whales. Few if any shore deposits are apparent in it. The rock is vitreous refuse, belched forth by subterranean or insular volcanoes. The minerals are supposed to be of cosmic origin—planetary dust and meteoric fragments that have fallen into the sea and have become disintegrated. The great quantity of sharks' teeth remains quite unaccounted for—at least their apparent gathering together in these ocean basins is considered very strange.—J. C. Van Dyke, in "The Opal Seal."

MORE JOIN IN REVOLT.

RUSSIAN SOLDIERS AND SAILORS IN MUTINY.

Uprisings at Cronstadt and Sveaborg Ended, but Trouble Breaks Out at Revel—Plot to Take Naval Strongholds.

Recent developments in the Russian situation are as follows:

More than 2,000 sailors and soldiers at Cronstadt mutinied, and a fierce battle followed, in which several were killed and many wounded. The mutiny virtually is ended.

The mutineers at Sveaborg fortress surrendered.

The crew of the cruiser Pamyat Azova mutinied off the Estonian coast and killed some of the officers of the vessel. The uprising was suppressed by sailors who remained loyal.

A general strike was formally ordered to begin in St. Petersburg Saturday noon, and as a preliminary the men employed in a dozen establishments went out Friday.

The report that the Czar had refused to accept the conditions to which Premier Stolypin agreed in his negotiations with Count Heyden, Alexander Guchkov, Prince Nicholas Lvov, Paul Vinogradoff and Senator Koni for the recognition of the cabinet turns out to be true.

Plot to Capture Naval Strongholds.

In the map are shown the chief naval points in Russia, plots to capture which have been disclosed. Sveaborg, where the most serious revolt has taken place, is one of the islands in the Gulf of Finland, a little south of Helsinki. One hundred and sixty miles eastward lies Cronstadt, another island, and practically the key of St. Petersburg. Almost directly south of Sveaborg is Revel, on the north shore of the gulf, a naval station of much importance. Ilga, another naval depot, is situated on the gulf of the same name, while Libau is a Baltic port and state dockyard about 300 miles south of Helsinki. Sebastopol is the famous Black Sea port which was the scene of terrific fighting in the Crimean war of 1854, with England and France allied against Russia.

Yield at Sveaborg.

News of the surrender of the Sveaborg mutineers has been received. The disloyal soldiers will be court-martialed at once. The mutiny practically ended when the war ships Slava and Bogatyr appeared in the offing at 6 o'clock Wednesday night and opened fire upon the mutineers. Although the shots went wild, they weakened the spirit of the mutineers, who evidently accepted this display of loyalty on the part of the crews of the ships as sealing their fate.

After several hours of indecision and fighting among the mutineers a white flag was flown. The mutiny was ended, and boats were put out to take the prisoners from the fortress. The entire fortress was turned over into the hands of the government.

Military disorders have broken out at Revel.

Although the collapse of the great Sveaborg mutiny and the defeat of the Cronstadt uprising somewhat relieve the situation, for the moment, the outlook is so black as to make the government despair. In view of these two mutinies, coming after numerous other outbreaks in the army and navy, the loyalty of the government's fighting forces is utterly an unknown quantity. No one knows what mutiny may spread like wildfire throughout the entire army and navy, or what strike may precipitate a horrible uprising and civil war.

Will Keep Up Fight.

Although the hands of the revolutionists were forced suddenly by the premature rising at Sveaborg, they are undaunted at these initial reverses, and intend to persist in their program. One of the leaders of the revolutionists boasted that the word had gone forth and that the fire of revolt would spread to the corners of the empire. His closing words were: "Now watch Revel, Niga and Libau."

The mutiny on the cruiser Pamyat Azova caused great uneasiness for a time, as it is not known how far the disaffection in the navy will spread. The cruiser, however, arrived in the roadstead at Revel in possession of the loyal portion of her crew, which gained the upper hand after a fight at sea. It is not known how many were killed. Five of the ship's officers are reported to have been slain.

When the firing began at Cronstadt there ensued a wild panic in the imperial palace at Peterhof, as the palace lies under the guns of the fortress. All preparations had been made in advance to flee to Tsarskoe Selo, but the report that the Emperor and his family actually had fled was denied later at the chancellery of the imperial household. It was explained, however, that on account of "dampness" at Peterhof arrangements had been made for the return of the imperial family to Tsarskoe Selo.

Martial law was proclaimed at Cronstadt and all day long re-enforcements were landed there from the mainland. No one is permitted on the island without a pass.

Baltimore's Railway Merger.

The board of directors of the United electric railways of Baltimore have approved the plan for the merging of the various transit and lighting companies of that territory. The company will issue 5 percent thirty-year bonds in the place of the 4 percent income bonds of those who join the combination.

ROADS MUST SHOW BOOKS.

Sweeping Order Is Made at Minneapolis.

Every railroad in Minnesota whose officials have testified at the present rate hearing must produce at the office of the State railroad and warehouse commission all records upon which their statistics have been based, according to an order made by the commission at the close of a sensational hearing.

This order is sweeping and if the commission is inclined to enforce it in detail it would mean the bringing of the record of all railroads doing business in Minnesota to the State capital. The order is directed at the Great Northern railroad, but may be made applicable to any road on request of the shippers' attorney.

Attorney Severance, representing the railroads, said to Commissioner Staples: "Why, if this order is enforced it would mean the removal of the offices of all the railroads to the State capital." Mr. Staples replied by saying it would not do that. If the railroads would permit the examination of the records in their own offices.

This order of the commission is the result of a request made by Attorney Mahan, representing the shippers of Hastings, Minn., made at the hearing after the auditor of the Northern Pacific railroad had given a lot of statistics showing how the earnings of railroads had decreased in Minnesota while they had increased in Iowa and Illinois. Mr. Mahan claimed that the statistics did not show actual facts.

Freight conductors and brakemen on the Southern Pacific will soon present a new pay and working schedule. The schedule says twelve and a half miles shall be an hour and eight hours a day's work.

Truly Polite.

The people in the South are very hospitable, and have a good habit of speaking well of the dead. Even the newspaper writers enjoy writing eulogies of deceased citizens. In a city in a Southern State, the afternoon paper, when its first edition came out, announced the fact that Mr. Smith-Brown, who formerly had lived in the town, had died suddenly in some part of Texas. A brief telegram had given the sad news. In an editorial obituary the editor waxed eloquent and said that Mr. Smith-Brown, who years ago had been an honored citizen of the city, was an exemplary man, a fine father, and none knew him but to love him. The panegyric concluded by saying the full particulars of Mr. Smith-Brown's sudden death would probably be received for a later edition. They were, and the laconic sentence stated that he was hanged by lynchers for horse stealing.—Leale's Weekly.

Snake Charms Felt.

A day or two ago as H. F. Buxton drove into his yard, he noticed that his old pet cat was crouched down very still in the yard, intently peering through a picket fence. Finally he went over to see what the trouble was, and there he found that a big flat-headed adder was either "charmed" by or was "charming" the cat—just which could not be decided.

With a carriage whip Mr. Buxton killed the reptile. He found that he measured over two and one-half feet in length—uncommonly long for adders of this vicinity.—Brooklyn Eagle.

DAZED WITH PAIN.

The Sufferings of a Citizen of Olympia, Wash.

L. S. Gorham, of 516 East 4th St., Olympia, Wash., says: "Six years ago I got wet and took cold, and was soon flat in bed, suffering tortures with my back. Every movement caused an agonizing pain, and the persistence of it exhausted me, so that for a time I was dazed and stupid. On the advice of a friend I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, and soon noticed a change for the better. The kidney secretions had been disordered and irregular, and contained a heavy sediment, but in a week's time the urine was clear and natural again and the passages regular. Gradually the aching and soreness left my back and then the lameness. I used six boxes to make sure of a cure, and the trouble has never returned."

ITS MERIT IS PROVED

RECORD OF A GREAT MEDICINE

A Prominent Cincinnati Woman Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Completely Cured Her.

The great good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is doing among the women of America is attracting the attention of many of our leading scientists, and thinking people generally.

Mrs. Sara Wilson

The following letter is only one of many thousands which are on file in the Pinkham office, and go to prove beyond question that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound must be a remedy of great merit, otherwise it could not produce such marvelous results among sick and ailing women.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"About nine months ago I was a great sufferer with female trouble, which caused me severe pain; extreme nervousness and frequent headaches, from which the doctor could not relieve me. I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and within a short time felt better, and after taking five bottles of it I was entirely cured. I therefore heartily recommend your Compound as a splendid female tonic. It makes the monthly periods regular and without pain; and what a blessing it is to find such a remedy after so many doctors fail to help you. I am pleased to recommend it to all suffering women."

Mrs. Sara Wilson, 81 East 8th Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

If you have suppressed or painful periods, weakness of the stomach, indigestion, bloating, pelvic catarrh, nervous prostration, dizziness, faintness, "don't-care" and "wonder-benefit-alone" feeling, excitability, backache or the blues, these are sure indications of female weakness, or some derangement of the organs. In such cases there is one tried and true remedy—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Bert Johnson who has been very ill with cancer of the stomach for the past few months passed away at her home in Ivanhoe early Saturday morning. Mrs. Johnson had been a resident of Grayslake for a number of years having moved to Ivanhoe only last spring. She was of a quiet loving disposition and through all her suffering was as an uncomplaining hero. She leaves to mourn her loss a devoted husband and a daughter, about eleven years of age, besides her parents, brothers and sisters and many warm friends. She was thirty-nine years of age and was a member of Mizpa camp, R. N. A. at this place, who conducted their ceremonies at the church, after which Rev. Walton took charge. The interment was in the Grayslake cemetery.

This community was shocked on Saturday evening when the news of the sudden death of Mr. Joseph Winkle, of this place, was received. Mr. Winkle has been working at Kolze the past few weeks as car repairer for the W. C. R. Road, and on Saturday the passenger train due here at 3 p. m. had two sections. Mr. Winkle not being aware of this let one section pass and went to cross the tracks when the second section came and whirled him into the air many feet, instantly killing him. He was expected to return to his home here that evening, and the shock to his devoted wife and only child, son Frank, was indeed a hard one. The remains were brought here at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon and taken to the Congregational church where Rev. Walton conducted the funeral services. He was a member of the M. W. A. of this place who marched in a body. He was an honest, kind and industrious man, and passed away at the age of 46 years. Interred in Grayslake cemetery. The bereaved ones have the sympathy of all.
